Art Pepper's brilliance was not it was like a chemical combination in a laboratory; his horrible childhood, his incredible musical gift, with his inability to communicate, are things he did not know how to deal with... For Art, there was no other life than being on stage. He lived for it. He was spectacular and he always wanted to do something, no matter what it was. The concert in Genoa shows how well Pepper played in the last years of his life, perhaps better than he ever
